

APPLY FOR A ONE-YEAR PAID GLOBAL HEALTH CORPS FELLOWSHIP

The most powerful lever of change in global health is great leadership, and everyone has a role to play. Global Health Corps (GHC) is a leadership development organization building the next generation of global health leaders. GHC is recruiting diverse talent for a range of positions on the front lines of the health equity movement in Uganda and the USA. GHC Fellows join a diverse, impressive community of nearly 600 young leaders. Through the one-year program and beyond, they engage in leadership trainings, professional development and mentorship opportunities, and become part of a global network committed to health equity.

In addition to their core work responsibilities, fellows receive the following benefits:

- Monthly living stipend, housing and health insurance coverage
- Attend five leadership and professional development trainings during the year including a 2-week training and orientation at Yale University in the United States, followed by a regional mid-year retreat and exit meeting in East Africa (all travel is covered)
- Are provided regular opportunities for professional development and networking
- Engage regularly with a community of other young leaders through meetings and online platforms focused on best-practice sharing and support.
