

Roofings managers promise Ugandans more

Dr Sikander Lalani, chairman

The last 25 years have been focused on investment, and for the next 25 years, our plan is to go more into innovations, and manufacturing new products. I want to thank the government of Uganda and all Ugandans for supporting us at all times. We are really grateful. As the 25 years campaign slogan says, 'There is so much more to do', we retaliate our intention to work towards the continued growth of this great country.

Winnie Lalani, Executive Director

In the next 25 years, we should be able to increase on employee satisfaction as well as reducing on rates of labour turnover. We should also be able to increase on client satisfaction as well as venturing into more construction materials so that when customers come, we are able to serve them with the whole package.

Anisha Lalani, Executive Director

Our customers are our main priority and we are continuously striving to make them feel this way. We also promise to continue to prioritise innovation with the aim of producing the best quality products and services in sub-Saharan Africa.

Nashila Lalani, Executive Director

Corporate social responsibility will remain central to us because giving back to the community is part and parcel of Roofings Group.

We vow to continuously impact the lives of individuals and local communities through our FOREVER initiatives.

Oliver Lalani, Executive Director

I would like to thank our staff, clients, the government of Uganda, and all stakeholders for their part in the success story of Roofings. The company couldn't have reached this milestone without the relentless support from its well-wishers.

The future of Uganda is bright, and Roofings is a star, which aims to shine brighter each passing moment on this remarkable story of socio-economic growth in the Pearl of Africa.

Sheikh Arif, Director Technical

It is indeed an honour when I address our company built with solidarity, outstretched expansion, a vision accomplished, Roofings, a prestigious name built with smiles. The Silver jubilee is a milestone achieved by thinking BIG, and hard work.

And as we stand on this threshold, we envisage to expand and continue to strive to make high quality products which can meet beyond expectations to support the dreams of many.

Dr Martin Kyeyune, Finance and Economic advisor

To our customers, we promise to continue giving technical and financial assistance so that as we grow they also grow and dominate the market.

Nicholas Vangramberen, Group Executive Board Member

We will work together with the whole Roofings team to share our knowledge, quality consciousness and environment friendly approach.

At the same time, we will extend our hand to the whole community. Whether it be in form of offering a great quality product, a state-of-the-art Roofings Group production facility or thousands of tree seedlings. There is so much more to do and we will.
