For the last 30 years, the NRM Government has spearheaded the protection, restoration and sustainable use of environment resources. Prominent policies and regulations that promote sound environment management such as the National Environment Act, Cap 153 of 1995 have gone a long way in integrating environment consciousness and planning in all sectors of Government, support public education initiatives and promote actions for sustainable development as a responsibility for all.

Environment Management still remains our collective responsibility. Every Action Counts!
